JEFFERSON BOARD ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Jefferson Union high school board of trustees was held on last Monday at noon in the high school building for the purpose of organizing the board and electing officers for the ensuing year, as provided by law. Trustees Lila Brown, Adolph Gehringer, Stella Jensen, Andrew Vireno and Principal James Ferguson were present. In the absence of the regular chairman, Mr. Gehringer was chosen chairman pro tem.

Mr. Truman Bentley was nominated as president of the board for the ensuing year and Mrs. Stella Jensen was nominated as clerk. Both were elected unanimously.

When nomniating Mr. Bentley and Mrs. Jensen, the trustees expressed their appreciation of the efficient service both had rendered the board of trustees and the whole district as officers of the board during the years they had served as officers.

Mrs. Jensen thanked her fellow members for the compliments they paid her, and expressed her desire to serve the young people of Jefferson Union high school in whatever capacity she could render greatest service.

The newly elected president, Mr. Bentley, was unavoidably absent from the meeting.

The clerk read a communication from Mrs. Eula T. Halladay, secretary of the Brisbane Improvement Club, inviting the board and Principal Ferguson to attend the next meeting of the club on the evening of May 4, for the purpose of discussing the needs of the district regarding the transportation of pupils. It was requested that Mr. Ferguson give a talk on the educational opportunities afforded by the Jefferson Union high school to the children of the residents of the Brisbane district. By unanimous vote of the board the invitation was accepted.

The board adjourned to meet at 7 o'clock in the Jefferson Union high school, previous to attending the meeting of the Brisbane Improvement Club.

Mr. James Ferguson was re-elected to succeed himself as district superintendent of the Jefferson Union high school district on last Wednesday evening at the meeting of the board of trustees held in the high school building. After passing the bills and attending to all the routine matters the board adjourned and proceeded directly to Brisbane to attend a meeting of the improvement club.

President Charles Johns of the Brisbane Improvement Club called upon Mr. Ferguson to address the club and explain the several courses of study which were offered by the high school. Mr. Ferguson explained the difference between a modern high school and that of thirty years ago, when all boys and girls were compelled to take the same work which lead to the university. "Today," he said, "the high school serves the needs of boys and girls who are going directly into business and industry as well as those who are going on to college and into the professions." He outlined the courses of instruction offered in Auto Mechanics, Domestic Science and Commercial work, especially, and stated that in the college preparatory subjects Jefferson Union high school met the requirements of the university just as all successful high schools in the state do. "Boys and girls from Jefferson can enter the university with the same standing as the graduates of the largest high school in San Francisco or anywhere else," he said. Mr. Ferguson explained the financial affairs of the district and showed that the most rigid economy is being practiced by the board of education in the business affairs of the school.

Mr. Bentley was introduced to answer a question regarding transportation of the pupils from the Brisbane district to the high school. He stated that the board of trustees would be very glad to serve the district in this regard just as far as the funds of the school and the law would permit. He requested that a committee be appointed to investigate the conditions of the district and to confer with the board of trustees in helping work out a solution of the problem.

Mrs. Stella Jensen was called upon by President Johns to address the meeting and she expressed her appreciation of the problems of the people in Brisbane in connection with the education of their children. She said in childhood she had attended school in a small community and told of the difficulties regarding equipment and other school facilities. She expressed herself as desirous of cooperation with the parents in every possible way in the solution of their problems.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Gehringer too were called upon and expressed their pleasure at being allowed to serve the district. They gave assurance that the needs of Brisbane would receive the most careful attention.

Mrs. James Ferguson was also introduced and extended a hearty invitation to the people of Brisbane to attend the meetings of the P. T. A. held in the high school.

Some of the members of the club, in discussing the matter of economy, stated that there were not enough desks in the school to accommodate the number of children. Mr. Ferguson volunteered to help raise funds for the purchase of necessary desks. He said that he knew the students and faculty of the high school would be glad to help put on a concert or other entertainment for this purpose. This proposition was at once accepted and plans will be formulated to give such an entertainment soon after the beginning of school next fall.

BOY SCOUTS ARE GIVEN DIPLOMAS

On Tuesday evening, April 26, in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel, another epic was written in the history of Daly City Scout work. On this occasion, District Commissioner L. W. Johnston, Scoutmasters Chester Smith and Al Brauns and Cubmasters Erenst Bradford and Woodrow Olson were awarded their diplomas by the San Francisco Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, for completing a course of training in the Baden-Powell School for Scouting. Through their studies at this institution, these men have broadened themselves by gaining practical knowledge of the ethics in connection with Scout work, which will prove valuable to them when sponsoring worth-while projects in the future, and will eventually be passed on to the boys in their charge. The teachings thus gained will reflect self-reliance and character habits within the Boy Scouts of this city, and thus a powerful influence in carrying on and building up a higher civilization and ultimately a better community.

Mr. Arthur J. Bodien, chairman of the District Committee, wishes to announce the appointment of Dr. F. P. Callsen and Mr. Edward Trier as members of the local Boy Scout committee. These two gentlemen are vitally interested in Scout work and have signifed their desire to serve the youth f Daly City. Mr. Bodien and the members of the committee feel that they have made a wonderful addition to their organization, and it is sincerely hoped that the enthusiasm of Dr. Callsen and Mr. Trier will lead them to great heights in our future activities. It requires many interested men in Scouting to make a good committee.

Tuesday evening, May 3, Mr. L. W. Johnston accepted an invitation from the local lodge of the Knights of Columbus and appeared before that body for the purpose of outlining the principles of Scouting. Mr. Johnston gave avrey interesting talk on this subject, which was well received by his audience. The District committee wishes to thank the Knights of Columbus for extending the organization the privilege of addressing their membership, and such courtesy is worthy of honorable mention.

Plans are now completed for the Boy Scout whist, to be held in the Daly City Auditorium on Tuesday evening, May 24, at 8 o'clock. Score cards will be 25 cents. A large turnout is expected, and arrangements are being made by Mr. Fred Collins, chairman of the whist party, to accommodate a large crowd. The object of the whist is to raise sufficient funds to purchase additional equipment for the local Scout Troops and Cub Packs, and bring our boys up to the standard required by the Scout regulations. The Scouts and Cubs are working very hard to make this affair a success, and any assistance given them by you will be appreciated.

DALY CITY TEAM WINS CLOSE GAME

In one of the most sensational and hardest fought contests of the season, the Daly City Eagles baseball team came out victorious, 6 to 5, over the snappy Fleet team, U. S. S. Augusta, last Sunday, on the local high school diamond. The large crowd that assembled for the game were well rewarded.

Ensign Leverton, leader of the Fleet team, brought along about twenty players, all in uniform. Those that broke into the game sure knew how to perform in their respective positions, making a number of plays that would get over in any league.

With Pitcher Gus Ford and Catcher Sloan both using very good headwork on the Navy boys' heavy hitters, the Eagles' followers all went home very happy. Ford struck out eleven batters. The entire Eagles team played even better ball than the week previous week. The work of Guenther, Flores and Perotti in the infield stood out. "Big Boy" Perrotti, local first sacker, was hitting the ball to all corners, only to have some opposing player come up with a sensational play. The local outfielders also did nice work. A new player, Allain, broke in with a brace of hits, a double and a single, both scoring runs, while Smith kept the Navy boys busy with some fast work on the bags. He is playing great ball in the field, a new position for him.

Here's hoping the boys keep up their good work this coming Sunday, as they are again slated for a contest with one of Uncle Sam's fast fleet teams at Jefferson at 2 P. M.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS OF LADIES' HOME CLUB

The election of officers of the Ladies' Home Club will take place at the business session on Tuesday at the club rooms on Werner avenue. Tree planting exercises and Founders' day luncheon will precede the meeting, to be presided over by President Lillian Landini.

Social day is the outstanding day in the Club, and will take place on Tuesday, May 24, at 2 o'clock. Friends of members are cordially invited.

ROLPH HANDICAP CREATES INTEREST

The peak of the spring racing meet at Tanforan will be reached tomorrow (Saturday) when the Pacific Coast Breeders Association offers the Governor Rolph Handicap, to be run over a mile and an eighth for a purse of $5,000 added. Even greater crowds than have attended past stake races are expected to gather to welcome Governor Rolph and to witness the greatest race of the meeting, named in his honor.

Following the race the winner will step up to the gubernatorial box to receive the compliments of California's chief executive. This handicap marks the begininng of the last week of racing at San Bruno for the present season. The Au Revoir Handicap the following Saturday will bring to a close one of the most successful seasons the track has ever enjoyed.

Nearly all of the star performers at the track will be called out in an effort to annex the rich Rolph purse, before taking their farewell for the Eastern tracks. Outstanding among the participants will be the Harry Unna horses, Yonkel, Golden Prince, Hillsborough, Polydorus and Sidney Grant, all great mounts. Unna has created a sensation at the track with his horses this season, and an even greater sensation with his methods of training.

Unna's horses are thoroughly Western, and the trainer has announced that before each season of racing he takes his horses to the beach and lets them frolic in the sand and sea. Should he carry off the Rolph purse, it is quite likely that Califrnia breeders will try the sand and sea method on their mounts.

Aside from the Unna horses there will be many other topnotchers ready to go in the leading Tanforan classic, and while fans at San Bruno are watching the Rolph Handicap, they will have a weather eye on the Kentucky Derby, which draws one of Tanforan's best horses, Gallant Sir. The horse left here two weeks ago to prepare for the Louisville event, and is rated a strong contender against America's turf kings.

LOCAL VETERAN FIREMEN PLAN ANNUAL PICNIC

The members of the Daly City Veteran Firemen's Association have decided to hold their annual picnic on May 15, at Nelson's Park, formerly Gilmore's Park, near Menlo Park. The public is invited to join the Veteran Firemen on this picnic. The picnickers will meet at the top of the hill at 9 A. M., and proceed to the picnic grounds. Don't forget to bring your cup. The Veteran Firemen will serve coffee free. The firemen are hoping for a good turn out and a good time.

CROCKER P. T. A. MEETING

The members of the Crocker P. T. A. will hold their regular monthly meeting at 12 Wellington avenue, next Tuesday, May 10, and will conduct a doughnut sale from 11 A. M. until 2 P. M. Miss Marshall will give a demonstration of doughnut making, using Snowdrift and Wesson oil products. Anyone interested may come and get a few pointers on cake and dougnut making.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES OF INTEREST

A day in Golden Gate Park was enjoyed by the Fifth and Sixth Grades of Woodrow Wilson, on Friday, April 29. The trip besides being enjoyable is very instructive. The hike includes a walk around Stowe Lake, Strawberry Hill, the De Young Museum, the Academy of Natural Science, the Aquarium, Japanese Tea Garden, the Bear Pits, and Children's Playground. A more beautiful spot than Golden Gate Park cannot be found anywhere.

The tulips at the conservatory grounds have been the marvel of thousands of visitors for weeks. The rhododendrons are almost at their height just now, and give a wonderful effect against the vivid green of the profuse vegetation and trees of the park.

A contest for the children sponsored by the Daily News, a San Francisco newspaper, came to a close on May 28. For the primary grades there were coloring matches and for the intermediate and grammar grades compositions on George Washington. Woodrow Wilson pupils won two of the prizes. The first prize for the composition went to a little Fifth Grade girl, Alice Sanders, and the second prize to Charles Kling, Low Eight.

We wish to make a correction in our report of the game held between Crocker and Colma on April 22. With due apologies to Crocker, we wish to announce that Crocker instead of Colma were the winners.

Woodrow Wilson boys and girls were in trim to meet Lomita Park last Friday, but through some misunderstanding Lomita Park players failed to put in an appearance.

A game is scheduled for this Friday between Crocker and Colma to decide a tie game.

The first track meet of this district for some years past will be held on Friday, May 6. The contests will be between Crocker and Colma. Some of the interesting events will be: 75 yd. dash; 50 yd. dash; 440 yd. four man relay; shot put; broad jump; high jump; basketball throw for distance; basketball throw for accuracy; baseball throw for accuracy; baseball throw for distance. The girls' events will be practically the same, except there will be no running broad jump nor 75 yd. dash, and the relay will be 220 yards.

MERCHANTS MAKING PLANS FOR THEIR ANNUAL PICNIC

At the regular monthly meeting of the Daly City Merchants' Association, held at the City Hall last Wednesday evening, Andrew Vireno presiding, it was decided to hold the annual picnic of the association on September 4. Plans for the picnic are in the hands of a capable committee, who will report in the near future as to the grounds selected for the day's outing. It is planned to make this year's outing even more interesting than those of the past, which were most thoroughly enjoyed by the members of the Daly City Merchants' Association, their families and friends.

Chairman Vireno also appointed a membership committee to work in the newly annexed district in Colma to secure new members for the association.

CHURCH BENEFIT CONCERT SCHEDULED FOR MAY 6

T. Eugene Goudey, and advanced vocal and piano pupils, with assisting artists, will give a concert at the M. E. church, Daly City, this Friday evening. Mrs. G. R. Zimmermann, contralto, and leader and soloist of the choir of the Presbyterian church, Ocean avenue, San Francisco, will sing. Mr. H. H. Hamilton, cornetist of the "Letter Carriers' Band" of San Francisco, will be heard in several brilliant numbers for the cornet. Rev. and Mrs. Roland C. Stahl will appear in literary selections. Stanley V. Lewis, a pupil of Mr. Goudey, who is well known to Daly City audiences, will sing several of his favorite selections. This concert is under the able and experienced direction of Mr. Goudey, who will be the accompanist for the evening's program.

VACATION CHURCH SCHOOL IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

As soon as the public schools close, Grace Presbyterian church plans to open their vacation school again as in years past. This is a church school of fun, craft work and instruction. The children always look forward to a good time in Vacation school.

Mother's Day at Grace Church

A special Mother's Day service will be observed in Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour. Rev. John R. Stevenson will preach a sermon on the subject, "Mothers of the Bible." In the evening at 7:45 a service of Gospel songs will be enjoyed.

VETS PREPARING FOR AUGUST MEET

Plans are being laid well in advance for the state convention of the American Legion, in Oakland, August 15, 16 and 17, which promises to be one of the greatest conclaves of veterans ever held in California, according to Oakland Legionnaires. The five American Legion Posts in Oakland are each represented on the various committees in charge of arrangements. Comrade W. Eliassen is chairman, and Comrade Dr. Slavich is vice-chairman.

It is reported that Greater Mission Legion Post will back Rev. Newton Moats of that Post for state chaplain. Rev. Moats is a militant minister who saw service in France, and would make a fine official.

These fine Sunday mornings and pleasant evenings make one think that it is time to resume that fine outdoor game of horseshoe pitching at the Daly City Park. Several foursomes have been noticed of late, playing in vacant lots. Get them lined up, Henry, and tell us when and how.

Through the efforts of the hospital committees of the American Legion and Auxiliary of San Diego county, 100 sets of ear-phones were delivered to the U. S. Naval hospital there for the patients. There were 250 beds at the hospital not equipped with radio ear-phones, and the Legion set out to supply the need.

Acting upon the request of the American Legion, Governor Rolph has proclaimed May 28 as Poppy Day in California. Poppies will be sold on that day by the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion to raise funds for the care of veterans who are suffering from injuries produced by the World war.

The American Legion emblem on your windshield helps the American Legion—and you. How many times have you noticed American Legion stickers on a windshield and wondered what outfit the owner served in and what Post he belongs to? You might hesitate and debate with yourself whether or not you would help someone on the side of the road with a flat tire or out of gas, but if there was an American Legion emblem on the windshield you would stop to help a buddie in distress. It's a good investment and the cost is nominal. A 2-cent stamp on an envelope and a sheet of paper with 15 cents in stamps enclosed furnish two stickers. Write Jim Fisk, State Adjutant, City Hall, San Francisco, or see Comrade Foreman.

OPPOSE TAX FUND USE FOR JOBLESS

Use of tax funds for creating "unnecessary work for unemployment relief" was protested by the Property Owners' Association of Burlingame at Monday's meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors.

Reduction of the wage scale paid for jobless relief work to "a point where the wages will appeal to those unemployed who are greatly in need of assistance" was recommended by the association in a communication which the supervisors ordered placed on file.

Declaring that, although the supervisors had the right to consider demands for unemployment relief and to assist in this work, the association, according to the communication, "opposed the use of the taxpayer's money for any purpose not of vital necessity at the present time."

According to the letter, the organization had been "advised that heavy demands will be made on you for relief of the unemployed. Many of the property owners are unemployed and have lost or face the loss of their savings through foreclosure on their properties," the letter stated. "It seems unreasonable to tax these people for the relief of other unemployed."

The association recommended additional aid to the unemployed by public subscription "from those able to pay." The communication was signed by Edmund Bourne, secretary of the association.

Work of constructing a concrete dam on Pescadero creek in the county Memorial Park was authorized by the supervisors. The project, which will be under the supervision of County Surveyor James S. James, will be paid for out of a $1,300 balance in the park sanitary budget. The dam will provide a 1,600-foot area for boating in the western section of the park. With $850 to be spent for labor, the project will aid unemployment relief, according to James.

A resolution was received from the San Mateo County Federation of Improvement Clubs and Associations endorsing the efforts being made to start work on the Ocean Shore highway from San Francisco to Santa Cruz. The organization asked that the joint highway commission take action to start work on the project.

A heretic is one who does not share our pet superstitions.

ANOTHER WEEK OF RACING AT TANFORAN

Renewal of the Governor Rolph Handicap at Tanforan on Saturday will mark the approach of the wind-up of the highly successful spring season of racing. With only six days to go, following the running of the stakes named in honor of the chief executive of the state, this Saturday may confidently be expected to be the climax of the session. It is difficult to visualize any larger assemblage of the fans than on recent Saturdays but indications are the attendance will be even more stupendous.

The "Rolph" is at nine furlongs and brings together all of the leaders. A real battle may be anticipated out on the mile oval with winners of features such as Polydorus, Sidney Grant, Bahamas, Joe Flores, Seth's Hope, Listo and others of that caliber engaged.

Whether the honors will go to a three year old or to an older performer is a problem to which the fans are devoting much time. The filly Pana Franka has won the title of champion of the "babies" at the meet, Yonkel proved the best in the three year old stakes, and the running of the feature Saturday should determine the championship among three year olds and upward.

Bahamas has usually been figured as one pound better than the Kentucky Derby candidate, Galant Sir, and the whole world knows Gallant Sir is considered a danger in the Churchill Downs event, also scheduled for Saturday. Joe Flores is another three year old that appears to be of sufficient ability to make Polydorus and Sidney Grant of the Harry Unna stable stretch their necks, no matter what the distance may be.

When the members of the Australian Davis Cup team were at Tanforan the other day their greatest interest was shown in the running of a race in which Joe Flores was engaged. Australians freely admit racing is their national sport and it is difficult to find as well informed enthusiasts in any other country. The tennis players had been picking winners with some success when the field for the Joe Flores contest trouped on the course.

"Now we are going to have 'class;' look at that handsome bay, he'll win," was the exclamation of the leader of the party as the field passed the judges stand on "parade."

The bay that was getting the unstinted admiration was Joe Flores, a worthy representative of the Hampton line. It was very easy for the colt that particular day, with the victorious jaunt a tightener for the more important Rolph Handicap to come about ten days later.

It does not seem so many years ago the colors of the Keene Brothers were being carried to triumphs over the bay at Emeryville. Red Lead, Mansard, and others were frequent winners for Jack Keene and the late "Ham" Keene. Those days were brought to mind by the victory of the Jack Keene bred Pana Franka in the Tanforan Juvenile Championship. The filly's sire, Pagan Pan, a black son of Luke McLuke, has been standing at Keeneland for a number of seasons. In the veins of the filly flows some of the best blood of this country, England, and Australia.

BORROWED THOUGHTS

"Verify your quotations" is the advice of someone, but the advice is sometimes difficult to follow. In the case of many famous sayings it is hard to find out who really said them first. Theere are many instances of striking phrases which have been attributed to prominent persons who really borrowed them from others.

For example, Lincoln's reference to a "government by the people and for the people." Almost identical words were used by John Wycliffe in the 14th century and by Robespierre, Thomas Cooper, Joseph Story, Daniel Webster and Theodore Parker long before Lincoln used them at Gettysburg.

Even the Golden Rule, which appears in two forms in tthe New Testament, was expressed by Confucius five centuries before Christ, and by other ancient teachers.

Perhaps the most catchy phrase ever uttered by the late William Jennings Bryan contained his "crown of thorns and cross of gold" metaphor, which is credited with securing his nomination for the presidency in 1896. It has been and still is generally believed that the phrase was original with Bryan, but the Congressional Record shows that it was spoken by Congressman Samuel W. McCall several months before.

But no one whose words have been appropriated by another could have shown a better spirit toward an imitator than McCall showed toward his in this instance. When questioned about it later, McCall said:

"Yes, Bryan borrowed it from one of my Congressional speeches. And probably I stole it from somebody else."

Accoring to the director of a Chicago civic organiation, more than 100,000 women sought husbands through matrimonial bureaus in the United States last year. It is unlikely that any woman with a good job had much difficulty in finding a mate.

Some ladies may find it monotonous in heaven if they don't get a new style pair of wings occasionally.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Troop 149.

Chester M. Smith, S. M.

Trop 149 officially opened the camping season for the Boy Scouts in Daly City over the week end. The boys left Friday evening and spent three days at Camp Snipe.

Saturday morning the boys set about erecting the tents and placing the camp in first class shape. Troop 149 now has three tents and is able to house its entire troop. The camp being set, the boys practiced their tests and during the stay passed such tests as nature study, swimming, saftey, fire building, cooking with and without utensils, signaling, first aid, knife an axe, etc.

Sunday afternoon the boys enjoyed a baseball game, and it sure was a real thriller. Supper was then prepared and camp set for the night. There were songs, stories and jokes and riddles, and then the marshmellows again. And did they go!

Monday was spent at the swimming pool, where the boys practiced their swimming and acquired a tan. Later in the day the tents were taken down and the camp cleaned up for the next group. During the stay the District Commissioner of the San Francisco Park Commission inspected the camp and congratulated the members of Troop 149 on the manner in which they carried on their camp. The boys were back home again at the usual hour, and so another trip without an accident.

Remember, June 10 is Parent Nite at Troop 149, and the boys expect a large attendance of adults. It is free, and the boys promise you a most interesting evening.

Membership is now open to all boys 12 years of age, or over, as there is a new patrol forming in Troop 149.

The next camping trip to be held by Troop 149 will be on May 27, 28, 29 and 30, and a nature study hike some Saturday this month.

Troop 148

Alvin R. Brauns, S. M.

At the regular troop meeting of April 28, the first second class badge was awarded to Aldo Alberigi, and so a big hand for Aldo. There are many of the others getting close and in the near future will be awarded their badges.

At a patrol leaders' conference held at the Scoutmaster's home, many things were discussed, the main topic of discussion being patrol subjects and troop activities.

Four weeks ago Troop 148 made an attempt to open the camping season, but due to rain was forced home. But all the boys are eager to attend the next camping trip, to be held at Camp Snipe on May 28, 29 and 30. Tents will be on hand this time, and the boys will not have to worry about the rain this time.

Congress should amend the migratory bird act so as to provide a sanctuary for lame ducks.

FREEHOLDERS ARE CHOSEN BY VOTERS

Last Tuesday nearly 20,000 San Mateo county voters cast their ballots in the selection of fifteen freeholders to write the proposed county charter, registered their unqualified disapproval of the Shakey oil control bill by voting against it two to one.

Republican voters gave their endorsement to Herbert Hoover, the party's candidate for re-election as president of the United States, and the Democrats of the county gave the highest vote to former Governor Alfred Smith of New York for president.

The freeholders selected were, in the order of the preference of the voters: Wincklebleck, Howell, Ryan, Hall, Eddy, Nowell, Campbell, Murphy, Christensen, McCurdy, Eldridge, Hatch, Chess, Casey, Brady.

Following a custom established 21 years ago, the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Independent gives away its papers every day on which the sun fails to shine in that city. A recent issue was so given away for the first time in 436 days, the longest period of sunshiny days since the offer was made.

Victor Hedman, of New York, recently congratulated himself that he would spend his birthday out of jail for the first time in 17 years. After devoting the morning to writing friends informing of that happy fact, Hedman was arrested in the afternoon for forgery.

Friday, May 13, will be considered an unlucky day by the superstitious. It will be so considered with good reason by seven young negroes who are sentenced to die in Alabama on that day for assaulting two white girls. Members of the Alabama Supreme Court, which recently confirmed the sentences, and Governor Miller, who has the pardoning power, have received letters threatening violence if the negroes are electrocuted.

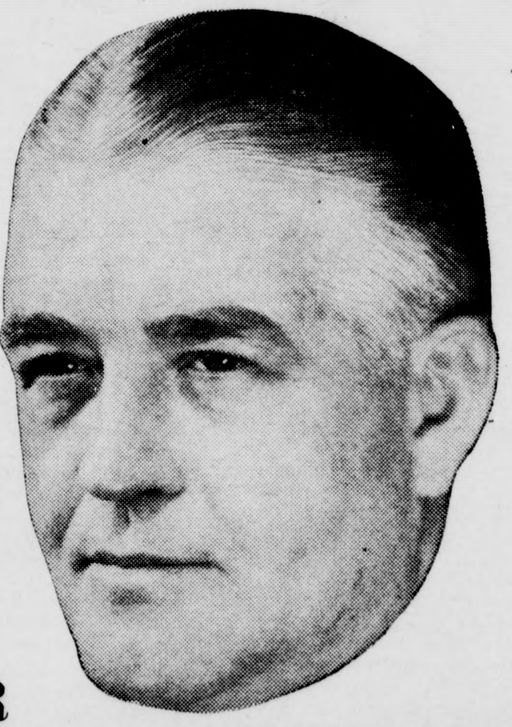
My name doesn't matter— but millions share my opinion



Even if I told you my name you wouldn't know me. I am just the average American. There are millions like me.

Like most people, I'm not an automobile expert; couldn't take a car apart and put it together again for the life of me—but I know what a car has to have and has to do to make a hit with me. And I'm here to say that I am a dyed-in-the-wool Chrysler fan.

I like the distinction and smartness of a Chrysler. I like the snap and dash, the smoothness and silence, the strength and safety of a Chrysler. There's something about a Chrysler that makes a fellow feel alive and up-to-date.

Believe me, when you get into a Chrysler and feel the wonderful results of its patented Floating Power engine mounting—when you drive a few miles with Chrysler's automatic clutch—stop a few times with Chrysler's hydraulic brakes—you don't need anybody's testimony that Chrysler is the most satisfying car on wheels.

I'm telling all my friends to drive Chryslers. It's the friendly thing to do.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

Sale of grass and mustard on the Sunnyvale airbase site has netted the navy department $601, according to reports.

Believed to be one of the highest in California, Modesto's grade A market milk supply is 97.3 per cent, it was revealed following a scoring by A. W. Hayes, state market milk specialist for the department of agriculture, and Frank Holtham, city sanitary inspector.

That the eradication of the dreaded parlatoria date scale may soon be an accomplished fact, was one of the most important things brought out at the ninth annual date institute held recently in Indio. The announcement was made by B. L. Boyden, senior entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture, who has been making a study of the problem in Coachella Valley since 1928.

Two hundred and fifty of the nation's leading authorities on scientific agriculture will come to Monterey Peninsula in 1934 for the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, at Asilomar. This was announced by A. C. Jochmus, secretary of the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, through whose efforts the meeting was obtained for Pacific Grove. Dates for the session are June 25 to 29.

The unauthorized use of the name of the American Legion for political, racketeering and other purposes must be stopped, is the mandate of the executive committee of the California department of the organization. At a meeting of the committee attempts to ride to glory by the unofficial use of the names of the veterans' society were severely condemned and a resolution adopted calling upon State and post officers to put an immediate stop to the practice.

Building of fire trails to protect Mt. Diablo state park from a repetition of the devastating forest blazes of last summer which laid the peak bare has been completed, Warden Henry L. Blaidell has announced. The work was done by a crew of men supplied by Contra Costa county. The men, all unemployed heretofore and dependent upon the county, were paid a small wage in exchange for their services. Thus the building of fire trails served a two-fold purpose.

Terrapin, a great table delicacy along certain parts of the Atlantic Coast, has reached such prominence along the California Coast that this lowly creature figures in the quarterly report of the commercial fisheries department of the State Fish and Game Commission, issued recently. In the three months ending March 31, 860 pounds of terrapin was sold. This is the largest amount ever reported for a like period. Most of the terrapin comes from Northern California points.

Efforts to have the state include the road between Vacaville and Zamora in the secondary highway system have been launched by the boards of supervisors of Yolo and Solano counties. The Yolo board has asked to have the road from Zamora to Winters included in the state system. Solano county will make a similar bid for the inclusion of the section from Winters to Vacaville.

Vierling Kersey, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, stressed before more than 100 trustees of Imperial county's elementary and high school trustees recently, in an all-day meeting at El Centro, that "we must have education, but we must have it economically." He said: "State plans for reducing expenditures have been made, but counties must determine just how the retrenchment is to be effected." A committee of taxpayers has compiled a chart of comparative salary amounts by cities and schools, with a view to requesting reductions in next year's contracts.

S. B. Snow, regional forester for California of the U. S. Forest service, recently proposed the construction of a "Sierra Way" highway 800 miles long, extending from the Kern river canyon to Mount Shasta and touching at all the scenic spots of the Sierra Nevada range. The road would include the Kings River canyon, General Grant and Sequoia national parks, Yosemite national park, and a number of attractions farther north. It should take in Mono lake, Carson valley, Donnor lake, Lake Tahoe, Lake Almanor, Burney falls, Lassen Volcanic national park and the Feather river country. Part of the road already is passable for motor cars, although not yet recommended for general travel, Snow pointed out. The plan calls for the construction eventually of a broad, smooth, easy-grade highway the full length of the season.

The lease of 8000 square feet of space to house the California exhibit in the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago next year is announced by Theodore Hardee, director of the State's world fair centennial celebration commission.

More than 1400 men and women have joined the Navy Yard Association of Mare Island. The membership campaign is being continued and officials expect to enroll at least 2000. The association advances the interests of civilian employes.

The California Supreme Court recently handed down a ruling that the state board of education can purchase books outside the state, thereby writing finis to a two-year controversy. The case in point concerned a bill for $2,400, presented by Ginn and Company, a Boston publishing firm, for music textbooks furnished the state some time ago. The court ordered the bill paid, and upheld the right of the board of education to purchase textbooks where it wished, despite the plea of the state board of control that all school books used in state schools should be printed in the state printing office.

The pinch of economy is hitting the State government so hard that even the flood lights on the State Capitol dome won't burn any more henceforth, except on nights when the State has made a $30,000 saving. Finance Director Rolland A. Vandegrift turned off the switch recently, explaining that the powerful flood lights making the Capitol dome visible for miles around have been costing $150 a month, or $1,800 a year. So now they will just be turned on when $30,000 has been saved, as a kind of Rolph retrenchment celebration. The interest on such a $30,000 saving, Vandegrift said, would come to exactly $1,800, the cost of burning the lights.

Sweeping investigations into California's governmental crime costs—Federal, State, county and local—were launched at Sacramento, together with State-wide surveys of juvenile delinquency, prison methods and crime problems generally. Backed by more than a score of State departments and law-enforcement agencies, State Finance Director Vandegrift appointed six advisory committees under the 1931 crime investigation bill sponsored by Senator Roy Fellom, San Francisco. "Crime is the greatest problem confronting the social order of the United States today," declared Fellom. "I am hopeful that out of these investigations will come tangible and intelligent information to aid the next Legislature in coping with the crime wave, improving our criminal code and paving the way for reclamation of criminals."

Gov. Rolph is appealing to veterans who are purchasing their homes and farms from the State to recognize their obligations in order to "keep inviolate" their agreement with the people of California "that this legislative program will operate without any cost to the taxpayers." The Governor also expressed confidence in the Veterans Welfare Board's method of handling deliquencies. He said he believed the board "is handling the problem of delinquency in a humane and sound manner." George M. Stout, secretary of the board, estimates approximately 28 per cent of home and farm contract holders are delinquent. This percentage is about $517,000 in terms of cash and cover 11,000 home and 403 farm contracts. About one-half of those in arrears are only a month behind in payments, Stout said, but the others who have lapsed for longer periods present the real problem.

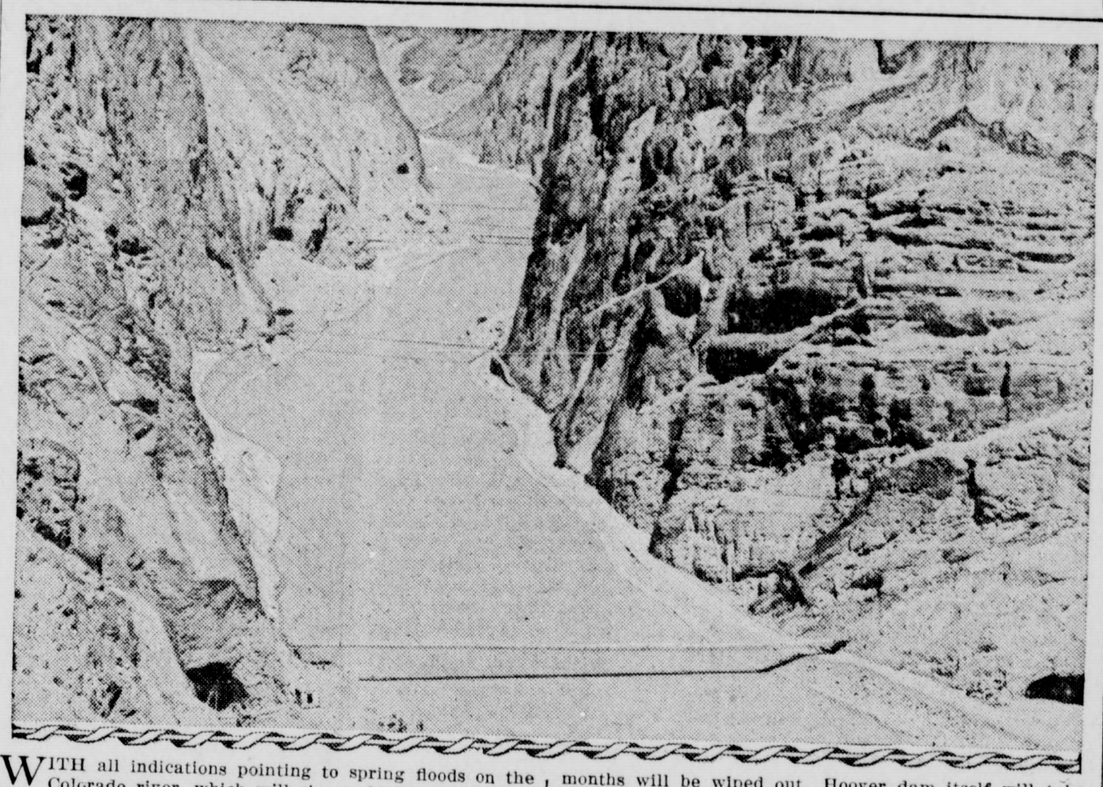
The Supreme Court has handed down a decision holding valid the Public Works Wage Rate Act and the Public Works Alien Employment Act, both enacted last year, in so far as they apply to chartered cities in the State. The decision means that in all projects undertaken by chartered cities like Los Angeles, San Francisco or Pasadena, the contractors must agree to pay the "prevailing wage scale" fixed by the body awarding the contract, that no aliens may be employed, and that the eight-hour day must be enforced. State Labor Commissioner Reardon said the decision means that the bidders on many contracts, more than 100, he estimated, now will submit bids. They have been delaying bids because of the uncertainty of the conditions of the contracts and the inability of the bidders to estimate what wages they might be forced to pay under the State laws.

Lawmaking and elections cost the taxpayers of the 277 municipalities and fifty-seven counties in California $6,977,883 during the last fiscal year, according to a report on financial transactions of cities and counties, exclusive of San Francisco, by State Controller Ray L. Riley. Cities spent $1,532,410 and counties $1,908,341 in legislating, and $1,105,336 and $2,431,796, respectively, for elections. Other expenditures are classified as follows: Cities—Courts, $1,190,618; government buildings, $1,747,035; police departments, $17,466,683; fire departments, $15,129,546; other protection, $5,500,209; conservation of health, $2,066,831; sanitation, $9,727,837; streets, $24,464,709, and recreation, $12,705,575. Counties—Courts, $3,317,870; Government buildings, $1,746,089; Sheriff, $2,857,140; Constables, $790,432; county jails, $1,298,611; horticultural commissioners and farm advisers, $1,680,879; forest protection, $1,474,678; conservation of health, $5,329,932; highways, $30,464,262; charities, $29,495,274, and education, $142,328,002. Buildings owned by the cities are valued at $873,932,227, and by the counties, $500,095,846.

The District Court of Appeal at San Francisco affirmed the Los Angeles Superior Court decision recently in ruling the Avocado Sales Company of Los Angeles is not entitled to a restraining order preventing former employees from engaging in the same business in their territory.

The old Stanislaus river bridge near Oakdale, a landmark for nearly half a century, has been closed to traffic and will be dismantled at once. Some of the material will be used for construction in other parts of the county.

Graphic Air View Shows Progress on Hoover Dam



WITH all indications pointing to spring floods on the Colorado river, which will rise to higher levels than the inundation of 1906, when the river overflowed into the Coachella valley and created the now famous Salton sea, 3,200 workmen in 24-hour shifts speed against time to bring operations on Hoover dam, world's largest, in shape so that the minimum setbacks will occur when flood waters pour through Boulder canyon. This remarkable air view was obtained from the first plane to make the flight over the new route between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, initiating the new air trail which will permit transcontinental passengers to view at first hand the government's operations. Activity at the present time centers on the completion of the four 56-foot diversion tunnels which will carry the river around the actual dam site by means of two coffer dams. The coffer dams must be built between high water seasons. At present Six Companies, Inc., holders of the contract, are one year ahead of the government's schedule, and if this advantage is maintained work on pouring 1,200,000 cubic yards of earth and rock into the upper of the two coffer dams will soon get under way. The face of the coffer dam must be covered with a 6-inch blanket of concrete before the floods, or the work of months will be wiped out. Hoover dam itself will take form in two and one-half years. It will measure 650 feet up and down stream at the base, 45 feet at the top, and about 1,180 feet along the upper rim. The huge structure will require 3,400,000 cubic yards of concrete, and in order to complete this item in the estimated time, the contractors will have to pour 7½ cubic yards of concrete per minute on an eight-hour day basis. The top of the dam will be only 400 feet below the rim of Boulder canyon, and the great barrier will impound 30,500,000 acre feet of water, creating a lake which will extend 110 miles to the Grand canyon, 14 times larger than the present world's biggest artificial lake behind the Assuan dam in Egypt. With the triple purpose of flood control, supplying water to southern California, and development of power, Hoover dam will pay for itself in 50 years. Destined to rise 720 feet high from the bottom of the canyon, it will stand as man's greatest monument in harnessing the forces of nature to his will. Photo shows Boulder canyon from the air above the site of Hoover dam. Two of the four 4,000-foot diversion tunnels, on which the greater part of the 16 tons of dynamite used each day is being used, may be seen on opposite sides of the river.

STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THAT was a royal quarrel there in the Green Forest on that beautiful morning, and the more dreadful because of that. Quarrels are dreadful, anyway, are between those who are looked up to. Sammy Jay and Chatterer the Red Squirrel are forever quarreling, and it is never nice to see or hear them. But bad as one of their quarrels is, it is nothing compared to this quarrel between Buster Bear and King Eagle. You know, once upon a time, long, long ago, Buster's great-great-ever-so-great-grandfather was king of the forest, and King Eagle's great-great-ever-so-great grandfather was king of the air. And now here their great-great-ever-so-great-grandchildren quarreling just like the most common of common people. It was shocking.

It would have been bad enough if there had been the least shadow of an excuse, but there wasn't. No, sir, there wasn't the least shadow of an excuse. They were quarreling over a fish which didn't belong to either of them. Plunger the Fish Hawk had caught it, and as he was flying home with it King Eagle, who has a fondness for fish, had made him drop it, and then hadn't been able to catch it before it reached the ground. It was just chance that that fish had fallen right where Buster Bear was sitting, and so he claimed it as his own.

Now King Eagle is not one to easily give up. You see, he has always been used to having his way. That is the way with kings. He had a very wholesome respect for Buster Bear's great strength, and his great paws and claws, but he didn't propose to give up that fish without a struggle.

"Robber!" he hissed as he circled above Buster's head watching for a chance to dart down and tear Buster's coat with his great hooked claws.

"Robber yourself!" roared Buster, turning so as always to face King Eagle. "You're just a great bully and nothing more. You can't catch fish, and so you rob those who can."

This was true, and it didn't improve King Eagle's temper to be told so. He called Buster all the bad names he could think of, and he made fun of him because he was no longer king of the forest. All the time he kept wheeling and turning just out of Buster's reach and pretending to dart down at him. Once he succeeded in striking Buster from behind before Buster could turn, and once Buster pulled out a couple of King Eagle's white tail feathers. Buster's little eyes blazed with anger, and there was a savage gleam in the eyes of King Eagle. And such a screaming and growling as there was! It brought everyone within hearing to watch. It is queer how quickly news of such unpleasant things can travel. In a surprisingly short time there was a ring of little forest and meadow people peeping out from safe hiding places. None of them knew what the quarrel was about, but all took sides as a matter of course. The birds wanted King Eagle to win, and the animals wanted Buster to win, and all the time they wondered what this dreadful quarrel was about.

"Robber!" He Hissed as He Circled Over Buster's Head.

Now as is the way with people who quarrel, it wasn't long before Buster Bear and King Eagle were so intent upon their quarrel that they gave no thought at all to what they were quarreling about, and little by little they got farther away from the fish which had made all this trouble. Suddenly King Eagle remembered. Buster Bear was now so far from where the fish had fallen that if he were quick he might swoop down, snatch it and be away before Buster could get him. Watching his chance, he swooped over Buster's head and down to the place where he had last seen the fish, his great claws outstretched to seize it. There was no fish there!

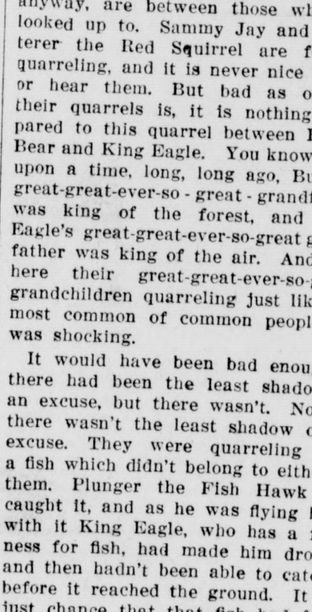
For the Whole Family



Natty spring designs for the whole family, as shown recently in New York, include a dress specially designed for the short woman, on conservative but flattering lines, a girl's coat very trim with its raglan sleeves and high three button effect, and a girl's dress with a simple embroidered design.—Woman's Home Companion.

"An interior decorator," says ironical Irene, "is a chap who knows how to place all the comfortable chairs where nobody wants to sit."

Printed Shoes to Match Colored Spring Dresses

Printed shoes to match printed frocks are the newest wrinkle in spring footwear.

Mannequins displaying colored print frock in the spring style shows wore high-heeled slippers made of matching print.

Black backgrounds sprinkled with bright flowers were the favorite design.

A FEW TASTY DISHES

SOME one has discovered that adding a bit of vinegar, about one teaspoonful, to a pea or bean soup that seems too thin, thickens it at once and leaves 10 taste of vinegar.

Croquettes are so much better if they are soft and creamy when served. By adding a teaspoonful of softened gelatin to the mixture before cooling it stiffens them enough to handle, and when cooked are creamy.

Dutch Sauce for Fish.—Take one cupful of liquid in which boiled fish has been cooked, add one cupful of milk. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, the liquid after the flour and butter has been mixed, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt and the lightly beaten yolks of the eggs carefully added. Fold in the stiffy beaten whites of the eggs after taking from the heat. Add a little minced parsley, if desired.

Luncheon Dish.—Remove the sardines from the box neatly and entirely (if possible). Place on a platter and surround with water cress or parsley. Cut radishes into tulips with a sharp knife, rolling back the petals to make them look like the flower. Arrange these in the cress or parsley and serve with the sardines.

The southern custom of serving a demi tasse of strong coffee, accompanied by sugar to guests in the house before they came down for breakfast, is one that is being taken up by hotels and dining car service.

Orange Fruit Cake.—Cream one-fourth cupful of butter, add one-half of a third cupful of sugar, one egg beaten light, the remaining sugar and two-thirds of a cupful of orange marmalade. Sift two cupfuls of flour with one teasponful of baking powder, one-eighth teaspoonful of soda and cinnamon, the same of cloves, add one-third cupful each of chopped orange peel and nutmeats. Bake in one loaf about one hour.

REWARD

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHEN we lie sleeping
In our little plot,
That other hands are keeping
Green or not,
What shall we care for,
If we care at all,
Be hoping, waiting, there for,
Spring and fall?

It won't be roses,
Roses once a year,
Nor not, as man supposes,
Be a tear.
In your tomorrow,
After our today.
We would not have you sorrow,
But be gay.

May man or woman,
Some one passing by,
Seek out the little tomb in
Which we lie,
And say, "He lifted
Loads he never knew,
And, even when I drifted,
Brought me through."

When freed the spirit,
When our work is done,
It will be sweet to hear it,
Even one—
To know forever,
After work and pain,
Not all of our endeavor
Was in vain.

LINCOLN'S GRAMMAR

An intimate memento of Abraham Lincoln and his youthful sweetheart, Ann Rutledge, was recently received at the Library of Congress, where it will be preserved with other relics of our first martyred president. It is the Kirkham's Grammar which Lincoln and Ann studied in New Salem, Illinois, one hundred years ago.

Textbooks were scarce in those days and Lincoln obtained the grammar second hand from its former owner, walking a dozen miles to secure it. This was in 1831, when he was clerking in a New Salem store and boarding with Ann's parents. When he had mastered its contents, he gave the book to Ann, writing on the title page, "Ann Rutledge is now learning grammar."

It is said that Abraham and Ann became engaged on July 4, 1833, shortly before Lincoln's election to the state legislature. Ann was stricken with malarial fever and died on August 25, 185, and intimate friends of Lincoln declared he never recovered from his grief for the only woman he ever truly loved.

The book was preserved by the Rutledge family, finally coming into the possession of William Rutledge, of Milton, Mont., a nephew of Ann. From him it was borrowed by Miss Jane Hamand for the public library of Decatur, Illinois. Not long ago, with Mr. Rutledge's consent, she presented it to the Congressional Library. There it may now be seen in the case which also contains Lincoln's Bible in which he inscribed his family records with his own hand.

It is said that lightning never strikes twice in the same place, but sometimes the liquid kind does.

Having the right of way doesn't help much when there is an idiot at the steering wheel of the other car.

JAMES SMITHSON'S GIFT

One of the most remarkable gifts in history, both with respect to the circumstances under which it was given and the results which have sprung from it, was that of James Smithson, an Englishman, who left his fortune of about $540,000 to the United States about 100 years ago.

From this legacy has arisen one of the leading scientific establishments in the world, in accordance with the terms of his will, which provided that the money should be used to found in the city of Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, "an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

A strange fact connected with his gift is that during his life James Smithson never set foot upon American soil. He was born in France, of English parents, the natural son of Hugh Smithson, who afterwards became the Duke of Northumberland; his mother was Elizabeth Keate Macie, a descendant of Henry VII. Smithson was a scientist of some note, deeply interested in research, particularly in chemistry. Just why he left his fortune to the United States is unknown.

In any event, as was recently said, "Smithson's bequest became the inspiration of American science and even to a measurable extent of world science." Besides, it has served as an example to other men who have given princely gifts to promote the spread of knowledge.

In 1904 Smithson's remains were brought from Genoa, Italy, where he died in 1829, and interred in the grounds of the Smithsonian Institution.

A legislator has written a piece on "Learning to be a Congressman." But Congressmen are more interested in learning how to stay that way.

AN ARMY MAN'S VIEW

It may be true that military men favor maintenance of larger armies and navies than the average citizen deems necessary. But that they want war is not true. No class is more opposed to war than those who must inevitably take part in it when it comes. Particularly is this true of those who have experienced the horrors of war.

But military men who have seen the slaughter of untrained or partially trained troops are naturally believers in adequate measures of preparedness. As a rule they have little faith in the idea that war is a thing of the past.

At the same time they realize that public sentiment is against a large regular military establishment and content themselves with making the best preparations possible with the means Congress provides. Their attitude is well expressed by Major General Charles P. Summerall, who recently said:

"We have never fought a war with trained and equipped troops, and we never shall do so. It is inconsistent with the form of our government and the psychology of our people to maintain adequate military preparedness. They would rather pay the price that has followed every war than to spend a part of that amount in preserving peace."

A PEDDLER'S RISE

There is a striking "success" story in the career of Joseph Abraham, who landed in New York in 1896, an immigrant from Syria, with $10.50 in his pocket. He died in Bristow, Okla., a multimillionaire.

Abraham invested his original capital in merchandise which he peddled from house to house, first in the East and later in Oklahoma. Within three or four years he was able to open a store, which prospered greatly. He also acquired eleven cotton gins and a cotton seed oil mill. Through industry and thrift he built up a great fortune.

A few years ago he returned to Syria on a visit and endowed a school for boys and girls in his native city, Adoon. He was a friend of the press and in 1924 he entertained the National Editorial Association at a dinner at which Syrian cooking was served exclusively, during the tour of the editors after their convention in Oklahoma City.

When he died, two daughters, who had been in school in Los Angeles, returned to Oklahoma for his funeral, covering most of the distance by airplane.

There is a valuable lesson for the shiftless and improvident in the story of this immigrant who began to climb the ladder of success with a peddler's pack on his back.

EFFECTS OF A FOOL LAW

Laws enacted by radical legislators sometimes have effects not expected by those who enact them through misguided zeal for the "dear people." An example is the Kansas law which prohibits the sale of electrical and gas appliances by public utility companies.

At a recent meeting in Wichita, the Kansas Press Association condemned the law, declaring it has caused the sale of such appliances to drop 62 per cent last year, while chain stores sold 85 per cent of what was sold. It is estimated that utility advertising in the state dropped off to the amount of $250,000, which loss was suffered chiefly by small town newspapers. Because of a similar law it is estimated that Oklahoma newspapers lost an average of more than $600 per paper during the year.

Commenting on these facts, a Texas periodical estimates that such a law in that state would cause an annual advertising loss of nearly $700,000, besides depriving many small communities to buy electrical and gas appliances locally.

This sort of legislation benefits no one, but serves only to retard the rapid progress which is being made in extending modern conveniences and comforts to the smaller communities and to farm homes.

HOLDS ALL WAR HONORS

With the recent revival of the Purple Heart, for which only persons wounded in battle are eligible, the major honors for American soldiers are increased to four—the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Medal, the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart—and Colonel Gordon Johnston, now stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., holds them all.

In this distinction Colonel Johnston stands alone, being the first and only soldier to receive all fur of these awards up to the present time. In addition to these, he holds the Japanese Order of tthe Rising Sun, the Chinese Order of Chia Ho and is a member of the French Legion of Honor. Two of his decorations were awarded for heroism during the Philippine insurrection, and the others for service in tthe World War.

Colonel Johnston began his Army career, as a private in 1898. His father was General Robert D. Johnston, a Confederate veteran.

One disadvantage in being a nation is the high cost of a modern army and navy.

An exchange tells of an efficiency expert who recommended his own discharge in the interest of economy.

POPULAR TOWN NAMES

If some one were to ask you what is the most popular name for towns in the United States, what would you guess? Unless you had checked up the names in the United States Postal Guide, it is safe to say that you would not hit upon the right name in a dozen guesses.

Of course, Washington would suggest itself, also Springfield, possibly Paris. But neither of them is the leader, although Washington stands in the second rank.

The most popular town name in the United States is Clinton, of which there are 30 having postoffices.

Next comes Chester, Florence, and Washington with 28 towns of each name; then Clayton, Madison, Marion and Troy, 27; Glenwood, Kingsport, Newport and Salem, 26; Ashland and Centerville, 25.

There are 24 Clevelands and the same number of Springfields, several of them being importnat cities. Other names range from this number downward. There is only one New York, but two Chicagos, six Philadelphias, and eight Detroits.

The outstanding popularity of the name Clinton is somewhat difficult to understand, although two statesmen of that name were very prominent in the early day of the republic.

George Clinton was the first governor of the state of New York and was vice-president of the United States at the time of his death in 1812. His nephew, DeWitt Clinton, was also governor of New York and an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency, being defeated by Madison.

Whether it be through the fame of these statesmen or the euphony of the name itself, Clinton is the favorite name for towns in the United States.

"Yeh," went on Fullhouse, "they stall around about this and that and keep coming back to the radio. Finally they ask Louie if he's heard that accordion player that's broadcastin' somewhere out in the sticks. Louie just gives 'em the blank mush and so they come straight at it then. They ask him if he don't know the guy who used to play for him is workin' somewhere on a circus. Then they tell him the name, Dayton brothers. You been on the air, keed?"

"Yes."

"That's what they said. They were hep, all right. That is, they made an awful stall that they were; acted to me like there was one or two little things they wanted to connect up on before they clamped down for the pinch. Finally Pete, he tells me where the show'll be for the next week in case I want to get a broadcast. Then they blew out. That's all I know."

"That's enough." Joe's voice was toneless. "It's only a matter of a day or two now."

"That's why I followed you up; I couldn't get to you last night without tippin' my mitt. I got a car at the edge of the lot. All you got to do is twist around the grounds some, and keep your eye over your shoulder. If there ain't nobody behind you, into the car and zowie, we're out and gone. I need a partner," said Fullhouse. "I got a racket that'll make money."

"Not with me, Fullhouse. It's a risk."

"We'll blow to where there ain't no risk. Maybe I ain't such a sweet-smelling violet myself, I ain't done no big-time stuff, but a clown cop could worry me. So I got my eyes open."

Again the music changed inside the big top. Joe faced about.

"One more number before mine," he said.

Fullhouse stepped close to him.

"You ain't going into the ring?"

"I've got to!" he said it doggedly. "You've done something for me I can never forget—if that's gratitude. But—I can't go with you. They'll get me sooner or later; I might as well face it now as after a while. I've thought it all out. I've got one chance in a thousand that maybe the thing would unravel if I could get the right kind of help. I've been hoping that Pete Maxwell will go to the front for me. He seemed to like me—as much, I guess, as a detective can like an accused man. Anyway, it's my only chance. I've got to tell him what I know and trust to luck."

"What do you know, keed? Got some dope, eh?"

"Maybe. I'm hoping—just what a man told me before he got killed. I was a cell mate of Hymie Fradke's—"

He paused suddenly, staring in the darkness. A sound had caught his attention, the voice of a girl, calling over by the dressing tents.

"Joe—Joe! Are you there? It's nearly time for the act!"

The man whirled. Fullhouse turned him swiftly back.

"Nix! Don't be a chump! Listen: What's that dame to you?"

"Nothing." Joe was lying, for her.

"You ain't told her nothing about this jam you're in?"

"I said I hadn't."

"It'd be h—l for her to be mixed in it. Listen, keed!" Fullhouse had caught his arms tightly. "You ain't goin' to use no sense, so I'll have to use it for you. If you've got to go on tonight, all right, go. But the minute you're out o' that tent, you set yourself to blow. See that big tree over there by the electric light? I'm up in the dark, just a half-block this way. Keep your eye open for a tail and if you're clear, tear for that car. H—l!" he exclaimed, "I ain't askin' you, I'm tellin' you. You don't want to jam an innocent dame, do you?"

"No! Not for the world! I was going tomorrow."

"Sure, in plain daylight, with a trail that a turtle could follow. Then when you're pinched, what? Back they bring you, and slip her a fall, too, as a material witness."

Joe Barry swayed. His shoulders bulged, the muscles of healthy work resolving themselves into the strength of hate.

"I'll kill them first!" he growled.

"You'll keep you g—dam head where it ought to be and duck like I told you! Well, how about it? Do I wait? Or don't I?"

The music of the circus band had veered anew. Now, Joe knew, Sue Dayton was beginning her entrance, the last he would ever see. He straightened, breath whistling over his teeth.

"You're right, Fullhouse," he said. "Wait for me."

Then slowly, as Fullhouse crouched to further conceal himself, a Pierrot edged out of the shadow of the great wagon, slipped swiftly forward with the knowledge that no one was watching, and catching up his accordion, made ready for his entrance into the ring.

This time, there were no discords. There was instead, a throb and a living quality to his music which he never had known before; Joe Barry's soul was directing his fingers now; he played without realizing it. He only knew that he was saying good-by, to this shimmering, beloved figure who smiled down at him from the back of her amiable old horse, to the crowds, to the billowy tents that had meant the only true home he had known in years. There in the spotlight, he gave her the heart of him by proxy, and when the act was over, he left within the circus ring something that was vital to him, the quality which had meant much of his boyishness, his trust in life, his innocence, his faith. Half-staggering, he went down the hippodrome track, the gleaming accordion swinging awkwardly at his side. In the dressing tent, he placed it in its case and pulled tight the snap, standing dully aside as a property man seized it in the rush of loading. Then Joe Barry walked forth, through the active maze of the pad room and to the tent of Sue Dayton.

"Sue!" he called. "Sue!" And when she had answered. "Sue, we can't talk tonight."

"All right, Joe," she said. "Let's wait until Sunday. You're tired Joe—you could hardly get out of the big top. Go down to the cars as soon as you're dressed, won't you, please?"

"Good night, Sue," answered Joe Barry huskily.

"Good night, Joe dear."

She came to him and he kissed her, longingly, and for the first time in his life he felt himself a criminal. For a moment more, he held her desperately, and his lips moved silently against her golden hair:

"Good-by, beloved. Forgive me—forgive me!"

After a time he realized that he was back in Clown Alley, the activities of the dressing tent clattering once more around him. The clown white disappeared, the Pierrot suit was laid away. The man rose, his eyes dazed. Then he moved swiftly on, through the maze of guy ropes, the tangle of wagons and men, for escape.

His Lips Moved Silently Against Her Golden Hair. "Good-by, Beloved, Forgive Me, Forgive Me."

The familiar surroundings had faded for him, the men, the dens and animals. Deep in his brain, some one was screaming, as a madman had screamed one night in the Tombs, when Hymie Fradke had paced his cell, mouthing his gangster creed of an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth and death for the double crosser. The lust which Joe Barry had known that night had come back a hundredfold. To find the men who had done this thing to him, to make them pay!

"They'll pay!" he muttered. The voice was deep, guttural. Onward he went, across the shadowy lot, wary again, his form half-crouched, his eyes and ears alert with a sensitiveness they never before had known. And the ghost of Hymie Fradke stalked beside him.

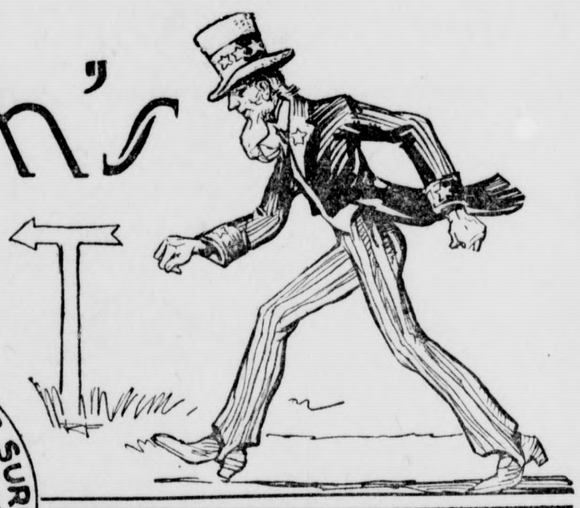
Father of Observatory

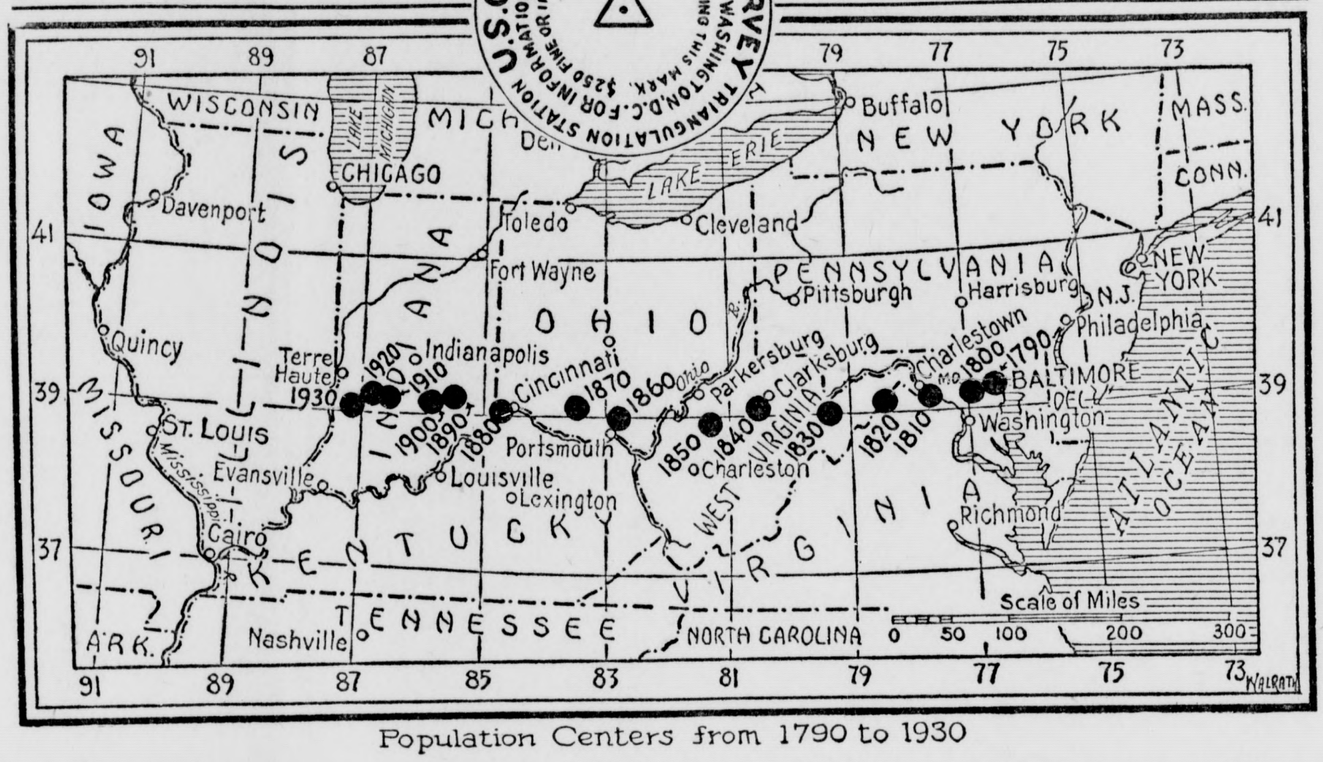
The entire fund for the construction of Lick observatory was given by James Lick, an American philanthropist, who was born at Fredericksburg, Pa., in 1796. Formerly a piano manufacturer in Philadelphia, Buenos Aires, Valparaiso and elsewhere, he settled in California in 1847, invested in real estate and made a fortune. In 1874 he placed $3,000,000 in the hands of seven trustees to be devoted to certain specified public and charitable uses. Among his principal bequests were those to the University of California for the erection of an observatory and procuring a telescope superior and larger than any constructed, for which $700,000 was given.

Babylonian Lawgiver

Hammurabi was the most illustrious of all the Babylonian kings. He was the sixth of the Amoritic or West Semitic dynasty and reigned 43 years between 2067 anw 2025 B. C. Hammurabi promulgated for use throughout his empire one of the greatest legal codes ever devised. A fairly complete copy of the code was found about the Twelfth century at Susa inscribed on a diorite stela eight feet high. Apparently the stone had been taken to Elam as plunder by invaders during the later period of Babylon's decline.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Uncle Sam's Westward March





Population Centers from 1790 to 1930

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

RECENTLY the name of the town of Linton, Ind., appeared in the headlines of newspapers in every part of the country and the reason was not because it had been the scene of some sensational crime, some event of political significance, scientific discovery or other happening which for a brief moment throws the limelight on some little municipality. The reason was that the United States bureau of the census, having completed the compilation of certain statistics obtained by the 1930 census, announced that the center of population of the United States is near Linton, Ind.

As a matter of fact, this center is located at a point in Stockton township, Greene county, Ind., which is 2.9 miles northeast of Linton, 31 miles southeast by south of Terre Haute and 33.6 miles northeast by north of Vincennes. But since it is nearest Linton, that town received whatever distinction there accrues to being known as "the center of population" and it became the successor to another Indiana town, Whitehall, in holding that honor. For after the census of 1920 the center of population was designated as a point 1.9 miles west of Whitehall in Owen county and in the ten years from 1920 to 1930 it moved westward 22.3 miles to the point near Linton.

Now what is this center of population and how is it computed? Probably most of us have rather vague ideas about that and the chances are that such ideas are erroneous as well. For the thing we have in mind when we say center of population is probably what the census experts call the median point.

If you draw a line dividing the population of the United States into equal parts north and south, and another line dividing it equally east and west, then the point of intersection is the median point. In every one of the four quarters there will be the same number of people.

But the center of population, as used by the census bureau, is that point that may be considered the center of human gravity of the United States. The census bureau pictures the United States as a rigid level plane, and on it our 123,000,000-odd people each one weighing the same, irrespective of age, sex and other distinctions.

Then the center of population would be the point at which the plane must pivot in order to balance perfectly. Literally then the center might be described as the decennial pivot of the American population playing seesaw.

Obviously this point has no definite relationship with the geographical center or the numerical center of the population—because the leverage given western sections of the country offsets the weights of larger populations of the eastern sections, on this hypothetical teeter-totter.

The westward advance of the center of population by 22.3 miles since 1920 is the smallest registered in any census except two. In 1900 the advance was only 14.4 miles, and in 1920 it was down to 9.8 miles.

On the other hand, the southward advance of 7.6 miles, recorded in 1930, is far above the average. Indeed, it is a trifle more than the net southward movement since 1790; that is to say, the excess of southward mileage over northward.

The westward advance is a reflection of the development of the nation—the tremendous strides made by agriculture in the states west of the Mississippi; the development of the great oil industries in Texas and Oklahoma and other parts of the West, and the steady growth of industry in general in those areas. All these are in the picture. Oil, cattle, wheat, manufacturing, moving pictures, have all had and still exert an important influence on the steady movement into the West.

A remarkable fact in the shifting of the center of population is the closeness with which throughout its westward path it has clung to the thirty-ninth parallel of latitude. Since 1790 it has progressed almost in a straight line, reaching its furthest point north 23 miles east of Baltimore in 1790 and its furthest south point in 1930 in Greene county, Indiana. Yet the span was only 21.4 miles. The greatest movement west was during the decade immediately preceding the Civil war, when the advance was 80.6 miles, while the least movement was in the decade from 1910 to 1920 when it was less than 10 miles. In the 140 years covered by the census records the advance has totaled 589 miles, an average of a little more than three miles annually, or about 11½ miles a decade. That does not sound very big, but it means a lot in the development of the United States.

Reference was made previously to the high southward advance and the reason for the southward pull of the last 10 years is chiefly California—south as well as west—and Florida—south as well as east. The increases in the populations of Texas and Oklahoma may appear also to have had some influence, but the increases in Pennsylvania and New York probably offset that growth in the southwest.

If it be asked whether the California-Florida increase in population was greater than the growth in Michigan and the North Atlantic states, the answer is the technical definition of center of population given above.

An increase of 100,000 persons in Los Angeles, more than 2,500 miles from the old center of population in Indiana, would counterbalance an increase of 500,000 in Detroit, only a couple of hundred miles away.

One of the most interesting results of each decennial census is the graphic picture which it paints of Uncle Sam's westward march across the continent. Here, in brief, is that picture over the period of 140 years from 1790, the date of the first census, to 1930, the date of the last one: From the 1790 position in Maryland the center moved in ten years almost directly west to a point about 18 miles west of Baltimore, and from 1800 it continued its westward swing, dipping slightly to the south to a point in Virginia 40 miles northwest by west of Washington.. In this decade it shifted 40 miles, the movement being due principally to the annexation of the territory of Louisiana.

In the next ten years, 1810 to 1820, it reached a point about 16 miles east of Moorfield in what is now the state of West Virginia. Here again there was a slight southward movement, which was due mainly to the increasing population of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. From 1820 to 1830 the movement continued west and south to a point aout 19 miles west-southwest of Moorfield, this being the most decided movement to the south in any decade. The reason was the annexation of Florida and increasing settlements in the southwest, notably Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

From 1830 to 1840 the center continued west, but slightly changed its course to the north, reaching a point 16 miles south of Clarksburg, W. Va. During this decade population had increased rapidly in the prairie states and in the southern parts of Michigan and Wisconsin.

From 1840 to 1850 it moved west and slightly south again, reaching a point about 23 miles southeast of Parkersburg, W. Va., the change of direction to the south being largely due to the annexation of Texas.

From 1850 to 1860 it moved west and slightly north, reaching a point 20 miles south by east of Chillicothe, Ohio, while from 1860 to 1870 it moved west and sharply north, reaching a point about 48 miles east by north of Cincinnati. This northward movement was due in part to the waste and destruction in the south consequently upon the Civil war, and in part to the fact that the census of 1870 was defective in its enumeration of the Southern people, especially of the newly enfranchised negro population.

In 1880 the center of population had returned south to nearly the latitude occupied in 1860, being in Kentucky, just south of the Ohio river, eight miles west by south of Cincinnati; but in 1890, owing to the great increase of population in the cities of the northwest, in the state of Washington, and also in New England, the center moved north to a point 20 miles east of Columbus, Ind.

During the decade from 1890 to 1900 it moved west to a point six miles southeast of Columbus, Ind., the great increase in the population of Indian Territory, Oklahoma, and Texas being largely offset by an increase in the population of the North Atlantic states.

In 1910 it was at the point where the parallel of latitude of 39 degrees 10 minutes 12 seconds N. intersects the meridian of longitude 86 degrees 32 minutes 20 seconds W., and for the first time in its history was located in a city—Bloomington, Ind. From 1900 to 1910 it moved .7 of a mile north and 38.9 miles west, the westward movement being nearly three times as great as from 1890 to 1900, but less than the westward movement for all previous decades, except between 1800 and 1810.

In the decade 1910 to 1920 it moved only 9.8 miles—the smallest movement it has ever shown, being only about one-fourth of the movement from 1900 to 1910. The center has been in Indiana for 40 years now and it is probable that it will still be in the possession of the Hoosiers in 1940, for the historic "banks of the Wabash," the eastern boundary of Indiana, are still 25 miles away and the center is not likely to go more than 25 miles westward in the next 10 years.

But if Indiana has a hold on one "center" which it eventually will have to relinquish, there is one state which has another "center" that it will never lose. That state is Kansas and it has permanent possession of the "geographical center of continental United States." For the United States Coast and Geodetic survey has determined that this center is located at Ogden on the Fort Riley reservation in Smith county, Kan., It is at a point which is 1,100 feet above sea level and is located in latitude 39 degrees, 50 minutes; longitude 98 degrees, 35 minutes, and a monument has been erected there to mark the spot.

How this geographical center was determined is described by officials of the survey as follows: "For a land area bounded by a true circle the center of the circle is the geographic center also; for an area bounded by a square or a rectangle the intersection of the diagonals is the true center; but for an irregular area the center is not so easily found. One method of finding it, a method sufficiently exact for all practical purposes, is to mount a map on the area on a piece of stiff paper or cardboard and then cut this paper or cardboard to the exact outline. The point at which this figure will exactly balance on a pencil or pin point, if left free to move, indicates the location of the geographic center." It was by this method that the survey not only found the geographical center of the United States as a whole but also that of each state.

Kansas also has permanent possession of another center which is of even more importance than its geographic center for it has aptly been called the "hub of the United States." Out in a cow pasture on the Meade ranch in Osborne county, Kansas, is a three-foot cube of concrete in which is set a metal plate on which a point is engraved. And this is the "dominant point," the "primary station," the "geodetic capital of America" the "king pin" of all United States map-making and surveying and from it is calculated the latitude and longitude of a sixth of the world's land surface, since both Canada and Mexico have adopted this point and its supporting system as the "North American Datum."

It was established by the United States Coast and Geodetic survey in 1901 as the initial station for the vast network of surveys that was to be spread not only over the United States but over the entire continent. It was designated as the "primary station" after the coast and geodetic survey had employed intricate mathematical calculations in extending its "triangulation network" across the country and had shifted the rigid network of its measurements about very slight distances until the errors in longitude and latitude of all the various stations were brought to the least possible quantity. When the network was "pegged down," the "mother station" was established on the Meade ranch in north central Kansas.

"It would seem from a historic and scientific standpoint," says R. S. Patton, acting director of the coast and geodetic survey, "that the Meade ranch triangulation station is worthy of a monument at least as conspicuous and artistic as the zero milestone in Washington which marks the beginning of the Lincoln highway."

NEW AUTO TO ELIMINATE COMMON CAUSES OF FATIGUE

"Medical authorities agree that incorrect posture and insufficient room for relaxing are common causes of fatigue," says Wm. J. Sweeney Studebaker dealesr here. "According to their opinion, driver and passengers in a motor car should have ample roominess and be provided with seats deep enough to support almost the entire length of the thigh. The seats should also have a slight backward slope.

"Studebaker pioneered form fit seats several years ago and has greatly improved them in the new 1932 models. Seat backs faithfully follow the curves and contours of the body and evtend higher to provide better shoulder support.

"Remarkable roominess is also characteristic of the new Studebakers. Seat width has been increased to provide ample room for three full-sized people both front and rear. No other car has wider seats—and only Pierce Arrow is its equal.

"Increased leg room, adjustable front seats, adjustable steering wheels and adjustable pedals all contribute greatly to riding comfort. So do unusually wide doors that provide new ease of entrance and exit. Front doors are angled in such a manner as to give more room between the seat cushion and the door frame—a feature particularly appreciated in getting in or out of the car from the driver's seat.

"A variety of other features also contribute to comfort and relaxation such as vastly improved Free Wheeling with Synchronized Shifting, automatic ride control, powerful engines cushioned in rubber and unbelievable quietness due to carburetor silencer, insulated bodies and full power muffler."

"SPRINGTIME FOR HENRY" COMING TO THE CURRAN

"Springtime for Henry," by Ben W. Levy, the outstanidng hit of the current New York season, comes to the Curran Theatre on May 9, bringing to the San Francisco stage for the first time that distinguished comedian of stage and screen, Edward Everett Horton. For years Edward Everett Horton has been a favorite on the legitimate stage, playing leads in many conspicuous successes. In 1928 he organized the Edward Everett Horton Productions, now an important link of the American theatre. His purpose was to bring to the West a duplicate production of the best of New York's theatrical successes.

"Springtime for Henry" is the latest of the Horton productions. The play has been running for five months in New York, where critics have pronounced it the cleverest comedy seen in years. The author, Ben W. Levy, gifted young Oxford playwright who also wrote "Mrs. Moonlight," "The Devil Passes," and other successes, personally supervised every detail of the Horton production.

Edward Everett Horton has never had a more perfect-fitting role than that of Henry Dewlip. Every phase of Horton's polished art is revealed in the brilliant dialogue of the play, its clever plot, its audacious argument. The author says that he wrote "Springtime for Henry" to be laughed at, and with Horton heading the company this desire is abundantly fulfilled.

An excellent cast supports Horton. Laura La Plante, stage and screen star, plays the role of the secretary. Ruth Weston, new film siren, is the philandering wife of Henry's friend, and Tyrrell Davis plays the friend, dull but a good fellow, Johnny Jellywell.

Another fallacy respecting tuberculosis has been discovered, according to a health officer in New York. He says that in not more than one per cent of cases of that disease is a change of climate necessary if well known rules for treatment of the disease are observed. Plenty of fresh air, proper food and absolute rest are what the patient needs, and these may be had almost anywhere.

Twelve different speeds are provided for a new electric washing machine with a control switch.

DRUDGERY IN THE HOME

Although much progress has been made in improving the American home, millions of women still lack the equipment that would lessen their drudgery and at the same time effect savings which would soon repay the outlay.

For example, a national survey reveals that only two out of every five wired homes have washing machines. Only one-sixth of all our farms have electricity and half the farm homes have no washer of any kind. Almost half the washers in use everywhere are declared to be obsolete, and should be replaced with the more convenient and economical ones now available.

Women are awakening to the situation, however, according to J. R. Bohnen of Chicago, secretary of the American washing machine manufacturers association, who is quoted as saying that never before has he received so many requests for the organization's bulletins on money and time saving in household washing methods.

Perhaps the women are realizing that many husbands who demand the most modern equipment for their business and industrial establishments are neglectful in providing similar advantages for the home. Certainly the home-makers should get a better break than most of them are getting in this respect.

The increase in divorces is most alarming to all except those who get divorced.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEES' SALE

On Tuesday, the 31st day of May, 1932, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., at the front entrance to the City Hall, No. 51 Wellington Street, in the City of Daly City, San Mateo County, State of California, Harry Esposto and Alfred Bothe, Trustees, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in lawful money of the United States, the following described property situate in the County of San Mateo, State of California, described as follows, to-wit:

Lots 42 and 43 in Block 12 as designated on the map entitled "Map of Subdivision No. 1 of the Schwerin Addition Visitacion Valley Property of the Schwerin Estate Realty Company, San Mateo County, California," which map was filed in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, on October 5, 1908, in Liber 6 of Maps at page 42.

Said sale will be made to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in a certain deed of trust executed by Alexander Zimin and Alice Zimin, his wife, grantors to Harry Esposto and Alfred Bothe, Trustees, for the benefit and security of Bay View Building & Loan Association, a corporation, dated October 16, 1928, and recorded October 22, 1928, in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, in Liber 384, Official Records, at page 1.

Notice of breach of said obligation and election to sell said real property was recorded in the office of said County Recorder of San Mateo County in Liber 554 Official Records, at page 91. This notice is given in compliance with the demand heretofore made on the Trustees by Bay View Building & Loan Association, a corporation.

★ MORE THAN 210,000 CALIFORNIA WOMEN SAY....

Electric Cooking is Economical...Modern...Clean

"I can't get away!"

"My dear... I wish we'd known about electric ranges before"

SHE never had time to go any place. Repeatedly she made excuses that really meant. "I can't go because dinner isn't ready."

Now she has a modern electric range. Her husband urged her to buy it. It seemed like the right kind of cooking apparatus to him. It was quiet, cool and run by a clock that set heating units to work at their job of cooking food. Thermometers turned of the radiant electric coils that did the cooking. It didn't require someone to stand-by as stove watchman.

Are they satisfied? Are the 210,000 California women grateful to the freedom electric ranges are granting them? Of course they are.

The modern electric ranges roast meat, steam vegetables, bake cakes and pastry to a noticeably better and more healthful tastiness. And the answer is in the even radiant heat that electricity alone can give.

Electric ranges too, are economical in operation. A considerable amount of the cooking can be done on stored heat in thickly insulated ovens, after the current has turned off. That is why examination of 1,117 electric range users' accounts show the average cost of cooking with electricity is but 1 cent a meal per person.

BLADDER TROUBLE

Doctors say bladder trouble is more common today than ever before. But why put up with it? Just try taking Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules regularly. This fine, old preparation has been used for this very purpose for 236 years. Today it is one of the most widely known of medicines. That its popularity has continued so long is the best proof that it works. 35c & 75c.

Stark, B. Zari and Jimmie Silvanes.

Although science has demonstrated that the moon has no effect upon growing vegetatation, many insist upon doing their planting "when the moon is right.' Replying to an anxious inquiry from a woman who wanted to know when to plant her garden to get the most benefit from the moon, an Oklahoma farm expert said: "That moon stuff is all the bunk." And the Department of Agriculture says the same thing.

That the one-pound baby born recently to Mrs. William St. John of Kansas City sets a record for smallness is disputed by Mrs. Carl Kraut of the same city, Mrs. Kraut declares that her son James, now 8 years old, weighed only three-quarters of a pound at birth. He is now a healthy boy of normal size.

NOTICE TO DESTROY WEEDS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on the 25th day of April, 1932, the City Council of the City of Daly City passed a resolution declaring that noxious or dangerous weeds were growing upon or in front of the property on all streets, squares, lanes, alleys, courts, avenues and places in said City, and more particularly described in said resolution, and that the same constitute a public nuisance whoch must be abated by the removal of said noxious or dangerous weeds, otherwise they will be removed and the nuisance will be abated by the municipal authority, in which case the cost of such removal shall be issued upon the lots of land upon which or in front of which such weeds are removed, and such cost will constitute a lien upon such lots of land until paid. Reference is hereby made to said resolution for further particulars.

All property owners having any objections to the proposed removal of such weeds, are hereby notified to attend a meeting of the City Council of the City of Daly City, to be held at the Council Chamber of said City in the City Hall, at the hour of 8 o'clock P. M. on the 23rd day of May, 1932, when their objections will be heard and given due consideration.

Dated: this 4th day of May, 1932.

GEORGE A. KNEESE,
Superintendent of Streets of the City of Daly City.

May 6, 13, 20, 1932.

AN INTERESTING EVENT

Last Friday evening Mrs. Lorraine Wall was tendered a surprise baby shower, given by Mrs. Aileen Grieder at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. Sullivan in San Francisco, the occasion being also a reunion of the members of the Chummy Club, of which Mrs. Wall is past president and secretary. This club was organized some years ago, before any of the young ladies became married. Both the shower and meeting again all the members of the former club was quite a surprise for Mrs. Wall. During the evening Miss Marge O'Connor presented the minutes of the club meetings, which Mrs. Wall read, much to the delight of those present, reviving old times and fond memories. After an enjoyable evening the guests adjourned to the dining room, which was artistically decorated, the color scheme being pink and yellow. In the center of the table was a huge basket of spring flowers and streamers from a large pink bell. Extending from the chandelier were tiny baby pictures, and there were hand-painted place cards at each one's place. At Mrs. Wall's place was a tiny cradle filled with baby toilet articles. Those attending were Mesdames Ruby O'Connor, of Oakland, Ellie Moran, Laura Clarke, Erna Handt, Helen King, J. Sullivan, Aileen Grieder, of San Francisco, Lorraine Wall; Misses Marion Cuneo, Bessie Hulten, Claire Cuneo, of San Francisco, Mare and Tessie O'Connor, of Daly City. Mrs. Wall was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Vishnevsky, of the Happy Ramblers Club, have as their guests Mrs. V. Christensen and daughter Rhea, of Ogden, Utah, who have been enjoying themselves very much since their arrival.

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Flapper: "Package of dye, please."

Druggist: "For cotton or woolen goods?"

Flapper: "It's for ma's stomach. The doctor said she'd have to diet, and she wants a pretty color."

Rebuilding and modernizing an old house is almost as much of a boost to the community as building a new one.

"Dad, what is influence?"

"Influence, my boy, is what you think you have until you try to use it."

Good Coal saves you money. Try Aberdeen.

Have you ever tried being what you think others should be?

"So your friend became wealthy through a sudden movement in oil. What oil stock did he buy?"

"He didn't buy any. A rich old aunt tried to start a fire with a can of it."

Mother (to her little boy after he has told a lie): "Do you know what happens to little boys who tell lies?"

"Yes, mother; they travel for half fare on the bus."

We carry a complete line of Builders' Hardware.

Customer (watching butcher cut off a steak): "Hey, you're giving me a big piece of bone."

Butcher: "No, I'm not. You're paying for it."

He: "Girls are prettier than men."

She: "Naturally."

He: "Artificially."

Willie: "A chicken, please."

Farmer: "Do you want a pullet?"

Willie: "No, I wanna carry it."

Kindling and Block Wood.

"Columbus Wasn't an explorer, he was a prophet."

"What?"

"Sure! When he discovered America, he exclaimed, 'I see dry land.' "
